THE PLAGUE IN OPORTO

Its Character Described by Dr. Arantes Pereira

Twenty Thousand People Left the City Before the Sanitary Cordon Was Practically Enforced-Some Doubts as to the Eubonic Character of the Plague-Mortality Low.

PARIS Sept. 6.-The "Herald's" Eurepean edition publishes the following Operto despatch from Dr. Arantes Pereira, director of the Pasteur Institute at Oporto, relative to the epidemic in that city. The telegram is under date of Monday last:

Oporto, in Portuguese Porto, is the second city in Portugal, and if Lisbon is the capital, Oporto is the capital of the north. The city is situated on the right bank of the River Doure. On the opposite side is the Villa Nova de Gayor, remarkable for its large stores, wherein port wine is prepared for exportation. Its population today amounts to about 179,000 inhabitants, the greater part of whom consist of workingmen and tradesmen.

The essentially industrial character of the city has caused it to be known as the Man-chester of Portugal. The principal industries are weaving, goldsmith's work, and ceramics, but at present these industries are prevented from assuming greater development because of the financial crisis which sent down the rate of exchange and put a premium of 20 per cent on gold. This fortunately is not so high now. The pound sterling, which before the crisis was worth 4,500 reis, was as high as 7,200 reis to 8,000 reis. Today the price is 6,500 reis.

Although Oporto is an industrial city, its reputation comes from its experts of the generous wine that bears its name. This exportation suffered much from the disexportation suffered much from the dis-ease that attacked the vines of the Douro provinces of the north of Portugal, and which has greatly diminished the produc-tion of the wine.

The vineyards are now beginning to be planted with American vines, on which are grafted native descriptions.

The American vine has been selected on account of its magnificent resistance to the phylloxers. Operto not only exports wine but granges onloss preserves cattle.

wine, but oranges, onloss, preserves, cattle, beans, cork, etc. Its commerce with Brazil, Africa and England is very large. The most important part of the city (the new part) is built according to prin-ciples of modern science, but there are still quarters of the old part (the quarter of La Se in particular) where the streets are narrow and very far from clean. The new part is pretty in glaces. It contains fine squares, good gardens, wide, and clean streets. In short it is a modern city. The old part consists almost entirely of alleys, irregularly paved, and its unclean-liness is due to the bad liabits of its in-habitants, who are workmen and porters. It should also be remembered that the sewers of the city are of the most imper-fect kind, and I believe that the great mor-tality is due essentially to the fact that the soil is saturated with contamination. One cause which contributes largely to the mortality of the city is the irregular-ity of the temperature. There is very often a difference of 12 degrees centigrade between the maximum and minimum in the temperature of the day.

Where the Plague Broke Out. Having made known to you the city of Oporto, I will now send you particulars of the epidemic raging in Oporto. It broke out at the beginning of June, in Fonte Taurine Street, near the river.
Gregario Blanco, a Spaniard, forty-seven years of age, by occupation a porter, was the first victim. He had been an invalid some time, but continued work to June 5. After the day's work was over he June 5. After the day's work was over he returned home melancholy and tottering. On arriving at his house he went to a room, and when sought for he was discovered dead. One of his companions, who was at his funeral on the following day, was seized with illness and taken to the hospital. The illness began with shivaring fits, intense fever (19.5 degrees, centisgrade), athema and buboes. In the same house and in adjacent houses there were other cases, and in nearly all of them it was ascertained that they were due to directive.

At the entertainment given last night by the Earl of Yarmouth and a number of young society people now at Newport. Washington was represented on the programme by Miss Ethel Sigabee, of whom the "New York Herald" says: "Another hit of the evening was made by Miss Ethel Sigabee, daughter of Capt. Charles D. Sigsbee, U.S. N., who had the part of Martha. She and the Earl did a dance entitled the "Moth and the Flame," which was very effective. Place your order for your Fall fits, intense fever (39.5 degrees, centi-

Forbes and daughter, or fourth day, when the patient collapsed Miss Georgie Forbes, have returned home after six months visit through the South. and died, or entered on a period of rapid after six months visit through the South, In Fonte Taurine Street up to August 29, thirty-seven cases of the malady were re-ported, but there were only fourteen ported, deaths. After the cases mentioned the discase appeared at isolated points in the city, but always with remarkable slowness. For thirteen days not one cure on the average occurred. Bacteriological researches have already been made, and it is said that the bacillus of Kitasato-Yersin (specific ba-cillus of the piague) has been discovered in the buboes and in the pus of the suppurations. The analysis has been entrust ed to the municipal physician, Prof. Ri-cardo Jorge, who is a truly scientific man, but unfortunately none of his reports has been published yet.

As soon as the epidemic was known, prophylactic measures were adopted. The rail-way stations were occupied by doctors, who were ordered to inspect departing travelers. and steps were taken to improve the sanitary conditions of the city. Fortunately has been no case so far in any other of the kingdom.

The government was alarmed at the fear which prevailed in the capital, and unfor-tunately established a sanitary cordon round the city, but this measure became known before it was put into execution. and more than 20,000 people fled, fearing not the plague but the scarcity of food which was inevitable, and which was aiready being felt. No serious argument can be invoked in defence of this action of the government, for even the Venice convention gave up land quarantines. Com-mercial establishments were closed today, and it is probable that the factories will close tomorrow and not open again until the cordon is withdrawn.

But before that there will be a popular

Doubt of "Bubonic" Plague.

Many people, and even medical "cenfreres," have described cases which they have seen or treated since 1896, and which much resemble those which have just been described and now diagnosed as bubonic plague. I dare not at the present moment affirm that we are in the presence of an epidemic of the bubonic plague, and the reason is that I have seen what happened in the case of the choleraic vibrion, which shortly after its discovery was described as the specific agent of cholera and as pos-sessing well-defined biological characteristics by which it could be diagnosed with

A few years later there appeared vibrions which presented the same charac teristics as Koch's vibrion, and it was even necessary to neek other characteristics in order to diagnose the true choleraic vi-

In the group of these choleiform vibrion we have one which is national—the Pes-tuna vibrion—which caused the epidemic at Lisbon, though with insignificant mortality, in the apring of 1894. The Masso-wah, Ghindo, Rome, and other vibrious have greatly shaken the specific character of Koch's vibrion. Moreover, these vibrions produce diseases greatly resembling cholers. May we not be in the presence of a bacillus possessing the same known bio-logical characteristics as the bacillus of the plugue?

What I can assure you with certainty is that the epidemic is a benignant one and that the total mortality of the city has been below the average this year.

Marketing delivered free. And now I venture to ask whether we sre not in the presence of an autochtonous epidemic caused by a bacillus similar to that of the bubonic plague (Kinsato-Yertin)? That is what the future will show. Northeast Market and Temple Co. Also a good chance for butcher and coffee and tea company.

of interest is largely due. The defence of Fort Griswold, located at Groton, on the Eastern Point, by a handful of volunteers, under command of Colonel Ledyard, against the onslaughts of two trained British companies, has been com-pared to the Pass of Thermopylae. With sad solemnity the massacre at the fort was celebrated for many years; then inter-est evaporated. In 1836 a fine monument, which still stands, was erected near the site of the fort, of which nothing remains today but the earthworks and subterra-nean passages of the Thames River. MAZET AT WORK AGAIN

General Tracy to Be Called Before Can Carry It in Your Pocket. His Committee.

To Be Questioned Concerning His Connection With the Ramapo Water Contract - Several County Judges Also to Appear-Croker Expected to Resume Testimony.

NEW YORK, Sept. 6 .- The Mazet committee will resume its sessions next Tuesday, and the certainty that the Ramapo water steal will be probed by the official investigation has aroused the public interest to a pitch which marked the ealier days of the inquiry, when Croker, Carroll, Deverey, Meyer, and other men of that stamp were on the stand, and which drooped considerably while the small fry of tax assessors and ward detectives were exposing their well-known unfitness to perform the work they are paid for. A keener edge than ever was put on expectation yes terday by a promise that Gen. Benjamin F. Tracy would be called upon to explain his connection with the water company.

Assemblyman Mazet, the chairman of the ommittee, returned to town yesterday from his vacation, and began work on preparing the lines of investigation for the opening of the session. Mr. Maxet said be thought that the next session of the com-mittee would be most important, and that mittee would be most important, and that be relied upon it as much as any for starting developments. He said: "Mr. Croker will probably be put on the stand again in a week or two. Gen. Benjamin F. Tracy will also be called upon when he returns from Europe, and he will be questioned very closely as regards some important facts in the city charter. He will also be called upon to explain the whys and wherefores of the Ramapo water contract. Others of the charter framers will be asked to testify on important points. "All the charter commissioners was can be reached, said Mr. Mazet, " are to be supocnaed." They are to be interrogated concerning all the sections in the charter relating to water supply and to making contracts for the same. We are especially interested in section No. 471, which seems to have caused a great deal of interest in connection with the Ramapo matter. The meaning of this section is primarily a mat-ter for the courts to decide; but the com-mittee will also question the charter com-missioners concerning it. This is only one of the reasons, however, why the charter commissioners are to be called. The committee is greatly interested in the charter, and, as is well known, has several changes in it to suggest to the legislature.

The opinion of the charter framers themselves will be asked concerning these matters. There is the question of reduc-ing the mayor's term to two years; of abol-ishing the municipal assembly, either in whole or in part; of doing away with the borough system of government: of increas Shipbuilders Call for Time. The Navy Department has received information which leads the officials cou cerned to believe that all the firms of cerned to believe that all the firms of shipbuilders engaged in constructing torpedo boats will ask for an extension of time to complete their contracts. One firm has already asked for an extension of one year, and it is said at the department that other firms will request an equal amount of extra time. These requests will be based on the claim that the shipbuilders are unable to get material from the contractors, particularly stee! All the steel works in the country are working full time, and many of them are working full time. Your grocer sells it.

Work in the country are working full time, and many of them are working extra time, and this prosperous condition has prevented them from getting out the material which the contractors for the torpedo boats require in the construction of those vessels. The department has not determined what it will do in the matter.

Washington, Alexandria and Mr. Vernon Rwy. Plans for a New Custom House. The Secretary of the Treasury has invited two architects. Frank Miles Day, of Philadelphia, and Thomas R. Kimball, of Omaha, to assist the Supervising Architect in examining plans for the proposed New York custom house. The Treasury Department recently selected twenty architects in various parts of the country to submit competitive plans for the cus-tom house. The plans are to be examined on September 18.

Ambitious Burglars. SOUTH BETHLEHEM, Pa., Sept. 6 .-Monday night was one of terror for Tax Collector Albert Conning and his family, of this place. The closing of the bank resulted in the accumulation of over $3,000 at his house. Two daring attempts were made by burglars to enter the house. Mr. Canning and son, Robert, decided to sit up all night, and when the latter heard the shot from his pistol frightened the
